PERSONAL STATEMENT

I have had a passion for drawing and creativity since I can first remember, and that enthusiasm persists to this day.

After 12 months of working in a design agency my goal is to keep developing my skill set in a commercial environment. I want a role that will not only challenge me, but grant the opportunity to learn as much as I possibly can.

Graphic design is what I enjoy doing – solving problems and communicating ideas visually are what I do best. Onward to world domination!

INTERESTS

During my spare time I enjoy practicing martial arts, drawing in my sketchbook, reading, and playing video games. I'm fascinated with Japanese culture, so I have studied the language for several years and traveled there twice.

EDUCATION

2010–2012 Bachelor of Computer Graphic Design
University of Waikato
Recipient of Sir Edmund Hillary Scholarship for design. I maintained an A+ average during my study of print, web, motion graphics, and illustration.

EXPERIENCE

2011–2013 Freelance Designer
Various Clients
Paid work for a range of jobs including album covers, branding, video editing, web design, and posters/advertising.

2013–2014 Graphic Designer
Bold Horizon
Here I had experience working at a design and marketing agency where I completed projects for a number of clients across print and digital media.

ABILITIES

Teamwork

As part of my Sir Edmund Hillary scholarship I attended team building exercises and worked on group community projects in collaboration with other design scholars to produce visual material for plays and musical performances.

Leadership

I'm currently training towards a fourth degree black belt in Kiaido Ryu Martial Arts, and helped teach at a dojo in Hamilton. I have also run the school for several months in 2010.
